THE BRNO HOUSE OF ARTS

The Brno House of Arts is a semi-budgetary organisation of the Statutory City of Brno.

The Brno House of Arts has been a constituent of Brno culture for over one hundred years. Since World War II it has been strictly oriented on progressive contemporary art and 20th century art. It is an open modern institution mediating and stimulating contacts between artists and audiences. The Brno House of Arts is traditionally one of the most significant agents in Brno culture, and its ambition is also to be a dynamic space connected to the network of prominent European galleries. Its activity contributes to shape the local specific form and level of visual creation. It is active in international, national and local contexts. The character of the Brno House of Arts, an exhibition centre without artistic collections of its own, determines to a great extent the form of its exhibitions, mainly oriented to present-day issues from both artistic and social life. The purpose of the institution consist in promoting long-term, continuous development of the discipline in the

The Institute of Anxiety

Established in 2018.

Curators Edith Jeřábková, Zuzana Blochová and artists Barbora Kleinhamlová and Eva Kořátková.

The institute aims to be a platform where anxiety communicates and opens itself to a potential solution and turns into a force that is capable of radicalizing and forcing structural changes in the current state of affairs.

Art projects, performances, panel discussions, lectures, art and curatorial residences, interviews, podcasts...
